

D ANDREWS

Working 1930's

The Light Car
Copyright

A POPULAR TEN
WITH SEPARATELY BUILT BODY AND CHASSIS

A sturdy well-designed chassis is the basis of the Hillman Minx, as revealed in this special drawing by a staff artist of The Light Car. The comparative absence of cross members is accounted for by the fact that each frame side-member is of box section.

Illustration from the book Power and Speed by Temple Press 1938 Image courtesy of Tom Brierley

Header illustrations and cutaways for The Light Car magazine.