"There are those who own classic cars and there are those who love to race them. Those who are just content to admire them and those who photograph them... and then there are those like the artist who like nothing better than to paint them, content to commit the images to canvas."

Davies' paintings are broadly divided into three areas: the welcoming, warm colours of the Mediterranean, the cooler colours of the British Isles and the atmospheric light of West Coast America, as well as featuring motorsport subjects.
